_____ Puffs _____ Braves _____ Smarts _____ Snakes

The Do's and Don'ts... directly from the playwright. The most important thing to remember when talking about the show is to not violate copyright and trademark law!

- DO refer to houses by their Puffs names: Braves, Snakes, Smarts, PUFFS!
- DO refer to characters as they are identified in the script.
- DO NOT use the names “Harry” and “Potter” together. Even better, refer to Harry as “a certain wizard boy.”
- DO NOT use any materials from Warner Brothers, Universal, Scholastic, or Bloomsbury – or any of the official Cursed Child stage play accounts or content to promote the show.
- DO NOT refer to characters as they appear in the books/films/play. In the world of Puffs, Harry is the actor playing him and Ron is a mop.
- DO NOT use well known franchise vocabulary including, but not limited to, the houses, spells, and shop names – although you can mention wands, brooms, owls, trolls, mirrors in general.
